Historic Cave Hill Cemetery Announces Winners of Fifth Annual Photography Contest

After a considerable time, and an extensive judging process, winning photographs have been chosen in the 2014 Views of Cave Hill Cemetery Photography Contest. This year, the foundation received 104 entries from people across the United States.

All photographs were judged on the following criteria by two local photography professors:

- (1) Creativity 33.33%;
- (2) Photographic quality 33.33%; and
- (3) Effectiveness in conveying the beauty and/or unique character of Cave Hill Cemetery 33.33%

The winners this year are:

Judge's Choice- Eddie Relick, Bloomington, IN

Honorable Mention- Barbara Keusch, Jasper, IN

January- Dara Cross, Louisville, KY

February- Anita Finley, Louisville, KY

March- George Jones, Louisville, KY

April- George Jones, Louisville, KY

May- Maddie Pierce, Louisville, KY- Student Winner from Assumption High School

The Cave Hill Heritage Foundation will conduct another photography contest starting January 1, 2015 for a 2016 calendar. As with the previous contest, the contest is FREE and open to the general public. The rules and regulations will be posted on the cemetery website, www.cavehillcemetery.com, as the new year approaches.

Cave Hill Cemetery was chartered in 1848, and is the burial site of many local philanthropists, artists, and other famous people. There are over 130,000 people currently interred within the cemetery.

The Cave Hill Heritage Foundation was founded in 2005, and is devoted to "Preserving the past for the future." With three distinct focuses- Restoration, Preservation, and Educational Development- the foundation has been pivotal in restoring a litany of monuments and grave markers across the cemetery, while increasing the level of awareness that exists regarding the part that Cave Hill Cemetery and its residents have played in the evolving nature of the city of Louisville and Commonwealth of Kentucky.
